Charles Cartland of Dover spends his Sundays at his farm, Walnut Grove, where his family are spending the summer.

The other day as we passed the old mansion owned by the Cartlands in 1737, and drove through the shady road with trees meeting overhead, it seemed truly a lovely spot. The Walnut Grove schoolhouse is still standing, where Moses A. Cartland was called an ideal instructor by his pupils, and who had such a lasting influence over them. It is said there are but two living at the present time that attended his school, Ben Chase of Derry and Everett O. Foss of Dover. We cannot wonder that Whittier wrote:

"Green be those hillside pines forever,
And green the meadow-y lowlands be,
And green the old memorial beeches,
Name-carven in the woods of Lee."

This verse being included in Whittier's memorial lines at the death of his cousin, Moses A. Cartland.

Mrs. William Priest and two children have returned to their home in Providence, after spending most of the summer with Mrs. Priest’s parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sargent Jenkins.

With the shower of Tuesday afternoon, hailstones as large as English walnuts were visible in some places; window glass was broken. It seemed to take a path from Lee Hill through the Hook toward Newmarket. None were seen in the north part of the town.

Mrs. Marilla Ricker of Dover, the would-be candidate for Governor of New Hampshire, was, in her younger days, a school teacher in Lee. She taught in what is now the C. E. Hall, (formerly the Hanson schoolhouse). The Hon. Charles Bartlett of Boston was at one time a student in that school.

EDITOR ADVERTISER — Seeing an article in your issue of July 22 in regard to there being but two now living who went to the Walnut Grove school when Moses Cartland taught, I wish to correct that statement. I was one who attended that school at that time. There was also a teacher whose first name was John, I have forgotten his last name. There was also a colored man by the name of Oliver, a cook. My name at that time was Ann Jane Jewell, daughter of Daniel Jewell, of Newmarket. I have forgotten his last name. There was also a colored man by the name of Oliver, a cook. My name at that time was Ann Jane Jewell, daughter of Daniel Jewell, of Newmarket. I think it was the year 1851. I well remember going to school there, although I am almost 79 years old now. I also went to the Packer’s Falls school, and I think Eben Davis is the only other pupil of that school at that time now living.

MRS. GEORGE O. DURRELL
Dunkirk, N. Y., July 26, 1910.

In a letter received by the ADVERTISER, July 30, from Mrs. Durrell’s son, D. Jewell Durrell, of Cincinnati, Ohio, he also calls attention to the fact of his mother attending that school, and adds that he visited his parents, July 24th, and found his mother enjoying very good health for her advanced years, and being able to thread a needle, sew and read the NEWMARKET ADVERTISER without the aid of glasses, and also that she writes him regularly.

To usher in the festivities of Old Home Week there was a huge bonfire on Wednesday Hill, which lighted up the western sky until midnight. Sunday there were services suitable for the occasion, a very able discourse on "Home and Church," by Rev. F. A. Arbuckle of Houlton, Me. A quartette of local talent and a soloist, Mrs. Frank Hill, of Attleboro, Mass., furnished fine music. The house was well filled, many coming from surrounding towns, while Boston, Attleboro, Mass., and Tacoma, Washington, were well represented.
Monday evening a most successful lawn party was held on the church green, which was prettily decorated with Chinese lanterns and national colors. The first part of the evening was taken up by a parade, consisting of a torchlight procession, decorated barges of school children, headed by young men mounted on horseback, and members of Newmarket Band. Possibly the most interesting feature was the happy couple, who appeared to be taking their wedding journey. Later the graphophone, fortune teller, and ice cream and cake all received due attention.

Wednesday, Aug. 24, all roads led to Lee. Early in the forenoon the crowd commenced to gather to see the ball game between the married and single men. The score was 5 to 4 in favor of the single men. The dinner was in Grange hall and from four to five hundred were amply provided for. The programme of the afternoon was carried out in the church as follows: A. J. Thompson, the president of the association, presided. The address of welcome was given by Fred P. Comings, response by Mr. Olie Tuttle of Hardwick, Mass., music by the quartette—Mr. E. O. Fifield, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McDaniel, and Miss Ethel Durgin, solo, Rev. F. A. Arbuckle, duet, Mrs. McDaniel and Miss Durgin, solo, Mr. Irving Davis of Providence, R.I.; remarks by Mr. Davis. Mrs. Doctor Grant of Durham, accompanist. Oakland Orchestra furnished music during the day.
